Sustainability made in the USA

At MAPEI, we say that sustainability is built into everything we do. From research and development of products to their manufacturing, to their transportation to market, we employ strategies for minimizing energy consumption and maximizing sustainable practices. We “think local” and use locally sourced raw materials whenever possible. By manufacturing our products at strategically located facilities throughout the United States, we reduce transportation costs, cutting the consumption of fuel and reducing pollutants by lessening the distances traveled and by utilizing rail whenever possible instead of road transport.
